In a recent national emergency, when the misfortunes which afflicted the people of France were awakening the sympathies of every American heart, the sensibilities of the members of the Chamber of Commerce of this city were deeply enlisted. The questions relating to the results or duration of the war which was then raging between two nations, with each of which we had always enjoyed relations of amity and good will, were in no sense involved in the movement which had for its object the relief of distress which had overwhelmed the population of one of them; but it was especially recognised and gratefully remembered, that the feelings of friendship existing between France and the United States had grown up from traditions the most sacred in the history of both countries. It was well considered, therefore, that in ministering to the wants of an impoverished people, our action would affect no question of nationality, while it would promote and elevate the principles of beneficence and humanity. The Chamber of Commerce could scarcely fail to recall the circumstances under which on previous occasions its kindred efforts had been blessed in behalf of other nations suffering from great and sudden calamities. The famine in Ireland, five and twenty years ago, was shorn of a portion of its terrors by the entrance into the waters of that country...
