Hunt, when he was informed that Vicat cement could be obtained, wrote to us as follows: I am delighted that the Vicat cement is in the market again after an absence of some fifteen years. This cement was used in the Delaware and Hudson Canal Companys building with excellent results. Messrs. Norcross Brothers and other large contractors that have built and are erecting stone buildings, now use Vicat cement, and it therefore seems appropriate that the architects who write specifications should insist on Vicat cement being used for setting limestone, and when used according to instructions, no stain will appear. Yours very truly, Howard Fleming. THE PROTESTANT CHURCH-BUILDING CONGRESS. Berlin, Gkrmanv. March 3, 1S91. To The Editors Of The American Architect: --Dear Sirs, --I have read your article in January 27 issue, regarding the Congress in Berlin for Protestant church-building with great interest and am much pleased at your sympathy with our efforts. To correct your article, allow me to state that the Congress will take place May 24 and 25 and we hope to have the pleasure of seeing sympathizers from your country. Of course, representatives of every Christian faith will be welcome. The accompanying circular will show what we have in view. The forms of architecture are secondary consideiations. Your devoted VOX DER HUDE, President of the Society of Berlin Architects. Washington Logs To Go To France. --A schooner laden with the huge logs and tree trunks of which the Washington...
